Andrew Keeping's reputation as one of the countries leading guitarists, teachers and pioneers of the instrument has lead him to all corners of the planet, working with some of the greatest musicians, composers, musicologists and institutions. His unique blend of humour and warm personality has made him a much sought after performer, speaker and lecturer & is a regular favourite of the British Royal Family. In 2001 the Royal Academy of Music rewarded his achievements and he was made an Honorary Associate of that institution.

A graduate of the Royal Academy of Music, Andrew has appeared at venues worldwide including broadcasts on both radio and television. He works in partnership with various international singers and instrumentalists. As a session musician his versatile playing can be heard in film music, TV ads and as a backing guitarist to some of the world's most illustrious Rock and Pop artists. Andrew's close affinity to the works of British composers has not only led him to champion major contemporary works, but also encourage composers to write for the instrument.

Andrew has been teaching the guitar since 1990. He teaches all styles of guitar from Classical, Jazz, Electric and Acoustic, and is professor of guitar at the London College of Music/University of West London. Many of his students have entered the profession as recitalists, teachers, bands members, and as session musicians and recording artists. Andrew offers lectures and workshops covering a variety of topics within the music industry. Music has played an invaluable role in providing a positive and life affirming experience. His Music Therapy sessions have proven to be very popular and successful.

With many years of experience, Andrew offers a highly professional service, and with his easy going manner he can take the stress out of any event. He can tailor his music and experience to suit any event. Andrew prides himself on the amount of work he receives by recommendation.

"At the age of 5, I was taken by my Father to see a performance by the legendary Andres Segovia. That day I was enraptured by the magical sounds a wooden box with strings could produce and, from that moment on, grew the inspiration for a life-long love of this beautiful instrument.

After graduating from the Royal Academy of Music in London, I embarked on a 30 year career in music. In that time, I have had the honour of performing to a wide range of distinguished audiences in some of the most fabulous cities around the world. I have been privileged to teach hundreds of students and collaborated with some of the most outstanding musicians in all genres of the music industry. I hope to continue educating the uninitiated to the joys and versatility of the guitar!"
