

The Leek Experience

Your Guide to Shopping and Eating Out

Welcome to Leek

We invite you to flick through these pages and discover why you should come to shop in Leek.

It's simple! You'll find a great mix of unique and independent shops and boutiques alongside historic markets, contained in a beautifully compact town. Added to this we are famous for our history, heritage and antiques and when you're ready to stop and refuel, we have numerous award winning places to eat and drink.

Set in the glorious Staffordshire Peak District, Leek provides a great base from which to explore the whole county. Nearby, visit The Potteries home to famous makers like Wedgwood, Moorcroft and Portmeirion or explore the Trentham Estate complete with beautifully restored gardens and unique Monkey Forest. Further afield discover Lichfield Cathedral, the National Memorial Arboretum and Cannock Chase. Not forgetting, Staffordshire is home to Britain's premier theme park, Alton Towers Resort.

Leek – a great day out

By an award-winning travel writer,
Stephen McClarence.

I first came to Leek on a bus in the middle of a blizzard. As the snow swept horizontally across the road down from Buxton, the driver hunched over his steering wheel, shook his head and said: "We'll be lucky if we get back tonight." We passengers smiled nervously at each other.

I've been back to Leek many times since then, but no-one has summed up its appeal better than a woman I met in the main street on that first visit. "If my father came back – and he died 50 years ago – he would recognise this street," she said. "This is a time-stood-still place."

That's it exactly. There's no shortage of smart shops (more with every visit), no shortage of antiques and fine buildings, but for me the essence of Leek is its more everyday sense of continuity and community. It's not a high-fallutin' place; it's sturdy, honest and welcoming, taking its Arty-Crafty connections with William Morris very much in its stride. It was, after all, an industrial town (in an unexpected place) so it has no airs and graces.

It clusters around its markets – the open market and the market hall, both bustling with traditional stalls.

'The town of Leek has some stunning Victorian architecture and decorative facades. William Morris had a long association with the town'

Sally Shalam, The Guardian

There are family-owned shops, and teashops where you can sample big, floppy flat-cap-like Staffordshire oatcakes. They all contribute to a tangible sense of pride in local tradition.

My wife and I are regularly lured here from our home in Sheffield. We drive across the Peak District to the hilltop village of Longnor, a sort of Leek-in-miniature, and then head down through the wide, wild Staffordshire Moorlands – a real top-of-the-world road past The Roaches, those gigantic outcrops of rock that rear up like a dragon's back.

They look amazing covered in snow, as I discovered on that first visit. The bus back from Leek did get through safely, incidentally.

Historic Market Place

‘One of England’s Oldest Markets’

With a market charter dating back over 800 years the Market Place is steeped in history and tradition.

Our Market Place combines fabulous shops, an attractive outdoor market, vibrant indoor Butter Market and a bustling table top Trestle Market, offering something for everyone.

Surrounded by impressive buildings, the Market Place transports you back in time to another era where you can browse a wide variety of specialist markets, shops and curious backstreet emporia. Whether you are looking for that special gift to take home or scouting for a bargain, you’ll enjoy the hustle and bustle as you immerse yourself in the unique atmosphere of the Market Place.

Market Days

General Outdoor Market

Wednesdays, for bargains, quality local produce and life’s essentials.

Indoor Market

Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays in the restored Victorian Butter Market.

Speciality Markets

The Fine Food Market

Why not indulge in a little of what you fancy? The Fine Food Market brings together local and regional specialist food producers and is held every third Saturday of the month in the Market Place.

Antique and Collectors Market

A fascinating Antique Market with a wide variety of items for sale. Held outdoors on the historic cobbled Market Place every Saturday.

Craft and Collectables

An intriguing Craft and Collectables Market held in the indoor Trestle Market every Friday.

Cottage Delight

A regular to the Fine Food market, local food producer Cottage Delight, is an award winning, family owned company based in Leek.

Fudge is where the story began, being made in the family kitchen. Later, Cottage Delight expanded to include a range of jams and chutneys using only the finest of ingredients.

Their passion for good food has resulted in numerous Great Taste Awards to date.

Committed to their ethos of better tasting food created to home-made recipes, Cottage Delight remains dedicated to supporting independent retailers and will not be found in supermarkets.

Discover Derby Street & Getliffe's Yard

Ideal for a little retail therapy and relaxation.

Take a stroll up Derby Street where you can see some excellent Arts & Crafts architecture of the late 19th century and a 17th century inn.

In the past predominantly residential, today finds Derby Street a lively, bustling high street with independent shops, boutiques and regular high street names along the largely traffic-free area, making shopping a truly enjoyable experience.

Sitting alongside this Victorian architecture is an original black and white timber building, The Roebuck. Dating back to 1626, it was originally a private home but soon became an inn and has remained so ever since. Today, Taste of Staffordshire accredited brewery Titanic owns and operates The Roebuck, which is a great place to eat and drink.

Nicholson War Memorial

Standing proudly at the top of Derby Street, The Nicholson Memorial is believed to be the tallest war memorial in the country. It was given to the town by Sir Arthur Nicholson and his wife in memory of their son Basil who was killed in action in World War I.

Tucked Away Treasures?

Tucked away in historic, cobbled Getliffe's Yard you can discover some of Leek's best hidden secrets. Here you can step back in time to another era and enjoy shopping Victorian style.

Getliffe's Yard, built in the early 19th century, was originally home to lodging houses, cottages and stables for the poor. In those days travellers to the town could pay a penny to lean on a post to sleep!

Restored to its former lively character, Getliffe's Yard is a vibrant community of elegant boutiques, excellent eateries and artisan shops selling lovely gift items. Set on original cobblestones below a magnificent glass dome, Getliffe's Yard is a great place to enjoy shopping in a relaxed environment.

Easy to walk past, but impossible to ignore once discovered, Getliffe's Yard is a destination you won't want to miss.

For more information visit www.getliffesyad.com

St Edward Street, step back in time to another era

St Edward Street, with its wide pavements and fine houses, was considered to be Leek's finest street and it was here, in the elegant town houses, that the great and the good of Leek lived. Walking up St Edward Street it's easy to imagine the elegant ladies of the town out for an afternoon stroll.

Today, St Edward Street is one of Leek's most stylish areas and for many years has been home to a fine collection of antique and reproduction wood furniture shops and mills, vintage clothes and artisan emporia, all attracting visitors from far and wide in search of an historic heirloom or antiquarian artefact.

Antiques in Leek

'Have nothing in your house that you do not know to be useful or believe to be beautiful'.

William Morris

Leek is bursting at the seams with all kinds of remarkable antique shops and certainly fulfils the William Morris philosophy.

Given its remarkable heritage, it's no surprise that Leek continues to attract collectors from far and wide all in search of something special. Whether you are looking to buy or browse, or just enjoy seeking out a collectable, Leek, in particular the shops in and around St Edward Street will offer you beautiful objects in wonderful buildings.

St Edward Church

At the top of St Edward Street stands the church of St Edward the Confessor. This is Leek's only medieval church believed to have been a place of worship for over 1000 years. Towering over the community, the church has been the centre of town life for many centuries. Most Wednesdays and Saturdays you can drop in for a cup of tea or coffee and at the same time enjoy the beauty of the stunning Pre-Raphaelite stained glass window in the north transept, designed by Edward Burne-Jones and made by his friend, William Morris.

Napoleonic French Prisoners

Between 1803 and 1812 Leek became home to over 300 French prisoners. Many went on to marry local girls, some stayed here after the war ended, and others returned to France leaving behind wives and children. There is a memorial in honour of the French prisoners in the cemetery at St Edward's Church.

Taste of Staffordshire, the mark of quality

Visitors to Staffordshire can rest assured that in addition to great days out enjoying themselves, they can look forward to great eating experiences as well.

Look out for the Taste of Staffordshire Quality Accreditation Marque. It tells you that our eating establishments, local food producers and retailers have achieved the highest standards of excellence for the quality of their food and drink.

To become a member of the Taste of Staffordshire scheme, businesses are inspected and assessed by experienced, qualified inspectors. Those which achieve the necessary high standards receive accreditation and are entitled to display our quality marque. The 'best of the best' are recognised annually in the Taste of Staffordshire Good Food Awards.

For a full list of Taste of Staffordshire accredited businesses visit www.tasteofstaffordshire.com

Staffordshire Oatcakes

In the good old days, long before fast food, one local snack kept the factory workers going from dawn 'til dusk; the Staffordshire Oatcake. On their way to work, locals bought them from windows of ordinary homes throughout the area.

A simple recipe of oatmeal, flour, salt, yeast, milk and water, oatcakes are delicious wrapped around just about anything savoury or sweet. Most locals fill them with various combinations of cheese, bacon, sausage, tomatoes, eggs and what have you. Look out in local eateries for fresh Staffordshire oatcakes on the menu!

White Hart Tea Room

'I order a Staffordshire Oatcake at the friendly White Hart Tea Room and it's delicious....'

Steve McClarence, Yorkshire Post Magazine.

There's nothing quite like a good cup of tea, whether it's enjoyed in the morning with a hearty home-made breakfast or in the afternoon as part of a delicious cream tea.

A Grade II listed building, The White Hart Tea Room was lovingly restored by owners Julie and Eric in 2006. All meals are freshly prepared on site using the finest locally sourced produce by a team of dedicated staff.

Julie, invites you to, 'Come along and try our White Hart Cream Tea – a pot of tea, served with a home-made scone, jam or lemon curd, butter and cream'. Sounds just too good to miss!

The White Hart Tea Room is a Taste of Staffordshire accredited Tea Room and has been a runner-up in Taste of Staffordshire Tea Room of the Year on several occasions.

The Roebuck

Recent refurbishment by Titanic Brewery has made this historic pub on Derby Street a great place to meet, eat and relax.

Serving the majority of locally brewed cask ales, Titanic Brewery director Dave Bott says, 'The Roebuck is a stunning building and we are delighted to have acquired it'. Dave goes on to say, 'We pride ourselves on creating welcoming pubs which sell good local produce and are used by customers of all ages.' Titanic Brewery is a Taste of Staffordshire Accredited Local Producer.

The Nicholson Museum & Art Gallery

Telling the story of Leek's heritage the Nicholson Museum & Art Gallery is a great place to discover the fascinating history of this town. Come along and visit The Nicholson Museum & Art Gallery where throughout the year you'll find a regular rolling program of exhibitions and events. Delight in stepping back in time to enjoy some of Leek's fascinating history.
