BBC Film Crew X 3

We teamed up with BBC to film a documentary on the paranormal.

We began by talking through the equipment we use and why then we took the baseline readings, which revealed nothing unusual.

Typically, there wasn't much activity at this location at all.

We performed several EVP sessions without success.

The torch in the first room in the cellar appeared to lose power but in closer inspection it was an eroded connection which was causing the fault.

The night couldn't have been much quieter as we were able to find natural explanations for our encounters that evening.

The only thing worth noting on a spiritual level was that tingling feeling when your hairs stand on end just prior to sensing something spiritual, but for the most it was a quiet night.

I believe Dez also experienced something residual in the graveyard but it was not filmed by the crew as we were on a break at the time.

A quiet night had by all sadly.
