Resident Buckie

1st Visit

We were kindly invited to investigate a residential farmhouse located near the coastal front of Buckie in the north of Scotland.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Stefan for his gracious hospitality. It was a terrific night.

We conducted an initial walk around the property in an attempt to detect which areas of the farmhouse we should concentrate on that evening as it was quite renowned for being haunted and the family have been experiencing several occurrences of paranormal activity from unexplained noises, physical sightings of ghosts/spirits and poltergeist activity.

We found two key areas that we wished to focus our investigation on that night; the living room and the guest bedroom upstairs.

During the walk-around Maryann encountered an elderly lady upstairs who would have sat in a rocking chair in her room knitting. As Maryann described the spirit of the elderly woman to Stefan a smile crossed his face. This is the lady that had appeared in the past to others.

Naturally I set up lock off cameras covering this room, to which at a quick glance look to be quite interesting as there appears to be some kind of activity in the room with meters active and some strange noises. Zoey was also our V.I.P (Virtual Investigator Person) that night, controlling our robocam.

Zoey reported some light anomalies that were moving in the room but when I tried to retrieve the footage from the camera it was corrupted.

I'm not sure what happened there but I suspect that it was maybe a software issue.

There was not much in the way of EVP captured at this location, but our main focus was attempting to get a spirit to interact with our new trigger object.

The idea behind the object stemmed from my theory that if spirit are energy beings as we suspect then perhaps it would be easier to interact with a trigger object that was energy based.

We set up an artificial magnetic field and floated an object on it (a Buddha head) with faces all around it so we could see the movement if any were to occur. We ensured that no air or wind movement would trigger a movement as the object was stuck fast to the energy field.

Maryann sensed the presence of a female spirit named Mrs Grant. We also set up a portable light charged by a fully powered li-ion battery with a battery life of 5 hours.

The thought was to offer an additional power source to help move the object should the spirit be able to do such a thing as investigators, including ourselves have reported unusual battery drain in the past whilst investigating. So we thought we could try and ask the spirit to attempt to move the object if possible.

To begin with nothing happened, but slowly the light began to dim and the head began to spin slightly then eventually gather some momentum.

We reset the object and i placed a grip plate to centre the head. We asked again if the spirit would interact with us again and try the same again?

After some time waiting, the light would completely switch off and the plate was thrown to the side and the head came crashing down, but we have since been able to replicate this effect so unfortunately it was nothing paranormal, but at the time because the experiment was new we were all on edge at what had just happened.

Maryann also sensed some children watching us from the back of the living room but we sadly did not manage to get much more as time had beaten us once again and we had to end the investigation to get some sleep in before travelling down to the west coast again.

Stefan was able validate Mrs Grant as she used to stay in the house previously but was flung from her horse and died from her injuries.
