

Case File 1005

Dundonald Castle

1st Visit

Sadly there was not much spiritual activity the night we performed our investigation.

There were two spiritual presences that I recall, but not much in the way of interaction with them as such.

There was a female present which appeared to show if she perhaps had some kind of spinal condition as she appeared to be hunched or maybe it was a posture developed condition. She did not interact with us so we got nothing from her.

There was a male figure present who appeared to be a little rough around the edges.

He barely interacted with us either but when we were attempting some EVP experiments, one of the staff asked from the castle asked us to enquire why the lady was kept here?, to which it sounded like there was a response "she liked the men".

The stand-out highlight for me personally was the fact that the castle staff had archaeologists visit the castle recently and when I was going from room to room I was sensing residual functionality for rooms which differed from what they were posted as.

For example, I didn't feel the pit prison was actually a prison but it had a more cleric feel to it, where documents and money would have been stored. Also, upstairs at the very top was listed as the banquet hall but i had felt it was more like a meeting hall where the lairds etc would meet to plot/discuss the future of the lands and entitlements etc. This room would have been bolstered on to the owner's private chamber.

The staff were able to confirm after the archaeologist visit that they suspected these rooms were posted incorrectly and also believe them to be suited to the purpose that i had described.

I also felt that there was a hollow passage in the wall which led to the outside. We checked around the outside wall and by tapping on the stone wall you can hear a hollow sound as opposed to the surrounding brick around it.

It doesn't look out of place or obvious in any way. It was fascinating though.

There was limited interaction with spirit which left us feeling a little deflated though, but overall it's a fantastic castle to visit and it was a good team bonding night.
